District of Virginia, Richmond, Supervisor's Office,

March 26, 1793.

THAT there may be no longer pretenses for relaxations in the regulations of the revenue laws of the United States, which impose duties on spirit distilled, and still employed in distilling, spirits within the same, this timely opportunity is taken of reminding all owners and possessors of stills which are taxed by the capacity, in this district, that the new year will commence on the first day of July next; that the duties and alternatives still remain unaltered; thus, as preparatory to the business of the year, every owner and possessor of any such still or stills, is required, between the last of May and the first of July, that is to say, in all June, under a penalty of two hundred and fifty dollars, one half to the use of the United States, the other half to the use of the informer, to enter the same, at the office of inspection established in his or her county, describing the same, and the capacity thereof; specifying the place where situated, and the person in whose possession; declaring also for what purpose intended, as whether for sale, or use in distilling. And it shall be the choice of any person so making entry, to distill by monthly license, or to pay by the gallon of spirits distilled, he or she is to notify such choice by writing under his or her hand, left at the office of inspection at the time of entry, and upon failure to do so, such still or stills, if used at all, will be charged at the yearly duty, which will accordingly be collected from the person making such entry, or from some one or more other person or persons, who shall then, or subsequently, own or possess the same, or on whose land the employment thereof, shall be, from the first of July, 1793, to the tenth of June, 1794, inclusive, the third section of the act of May 8th, 1792, giving that compensation et cœuvres for the payment of the duty, when no exception as to the owner of the land where employed, that if the person using such still or stills, be a bona fide tenant for a term of, not less than one year, or during the whole time of working the same, shall be a proprietor or master, the proprietor of the land, upon showing either to be the case, will stand exonerated from the duty. And as a further security, every still being identified by the marks and numbers legally placed thereon, the duty operates as a specific lien on the same, and any purchaser, even after the expiration of the year, will hold it subject to be taken for any unpaid duties of a preceding year. To avoid inconvenience to purchasers while this security is held for the public, it will be proper for every holder of a still, upon the duties arising thereon within the year being fully paid, to take from the officer a certificate to that effect, which may pass therewith to any future holder.

And it is also required that every person who shall, after the commencement of the year above described being a resident of a county, procure a still or stills, or removing into the county, shall bring the said still or stills, within thirty days after such procuring or removal, and before he or she shall begin to use the same, make entry thereof in manner and under the like penalty as before mentioned; and in case of removal shall further specify the place from whence the same shall have been brought.

It is presumed that the several rates of duty are already understood, as well as the terms on which they are to be chosen, but as this publication is meant to remove all grounds for pleas of ignorance, they are here stated as follow:—

The yearly duty is 5 cents for every gallon of the capacity of each still.

The monthly duty is 10 cents on the like capacity.

The duty by the gallon of spirits distilled, is 7 cents for every gallon so distilled, subject to a deduction of 2 gallons in every hundred for leakage.

Where the yearly duty is paid it will be collected in moieties, twenty-seven cents after the thirty-first of December, and twenty-seven cents after the thirtieth of June in each year.

Where the monthly duty is chosen, the election made at the first entry, governs as to the still to which it relates, throughout the year, and entries will be filed for one or more months, consecutive, from time to time, as the holder shall require them. For distilling out of the time for which a license shall be granted, the penalty is two hundred dollars, one half to the use of the United States, the other half to the use of the informer, and the yearly, instead of the monthly, duty, is also to be paid.

Where the duty by the gallon of spirits is chosen, the first election, in like manner governs throughout the year, and at each half-yearly collection the person availing himself of this alternative must, according to the twenty-fourth section of the act of the third March, 1790, produce to the collector a book, in which he or she shall have entered, as caused to be entered, the quantities of spirits distilled from the still or stills to which the book shall relate, from day to day, during the employment thereof, and the quantity, from time to time, sold or otherwise disposed of, and to whom and when; and shall also declare, the quantity then remaining on hand; this book is to be verified on oath or affirmation to the best of the knowledge and belief of the person claiming the benefit of the alternative; provided that if the entries shall have been made by any person other than the proprietor, a like oath or affirmation shall be made by such person. From a supposition that many distillers were imperfectly informed as to the requisites of this part of the law, the collectors have heretofore in many instances, relied in requiring as accurate accounts as the law directs; but as this plea, cannot, in future, be a just one, such relaxations will no longer be admitted, and the consequence of not rendering a legal account, will, inevitably, be the payment of the yearly duty.

All good citizens of this district must bear witness of the intention which has been given to make the laws, in the early stages of the revenue business generally known, and to prevent the infliction of penalties—not wilfully incurred; and all will agree that laws, particularly of this nature, not strictly enforced, become partial burdens; none will therefore now expect a continuance of such relaxations, as respects the public to friends from those who may be inclined to practice them.

For more full information how distillers are to act in making their entries, and for securing the alternative allowed, several forms are hereto annexed.

PHILADELPHIA, May 18.

The celebrated Baron Trenck, who suffered ten years imprisonment in the dungeon of Magdebourg, by the old tyrant of Prussia; that scourge of mankind, is arrived in France, from Hamburg. This man was shut up for the above period of years, with a crust of bread, a jug of water, and his tomb-stone constantly before his eyes; the inscription only legible, by the faint glimmer of day that was admitted.

A writer in the Virginia Herald (who signs himself Hannoverianus) fearing that many persons might be at a loss to understand the meaning of certain terms in the late reports of the Secretary of the Treasury, thus explains the word Infrumentality, from Sam. Johnson's folio Dictionary. Infrumentality—agency of any thing as means to an end.—Perhaps some of the members of the late Congress may give a more satisfactory definition.

There is now living near Prince Edward court house Virginia, a person named John Holloway, born in England in the year 1669; he left England in 1744, and arrived in Virginia. At the age of 57 he married a woman of 44, by whom he had a son now alive, aged 54.—Holloway is now in the 124th year of his age, and in good health and spirits.

July 1.

[From the Virginia Gazette.]
An extract from Philadelphia, published in a late Gazette, says, that "the President has spoken the sentiments of America in his proclamation." If I believed it, I should think for shame—I know it is not the sentiment of any in the circle of my fellow citizens—every good citizen and honest man views France as struggling in the cause of Heaven and humanity, and wish sincerely with to help her, which he doth with his prayers when he can do no more; for my own part I think it a shame for America to be neuter in such a cause; but I am the better reconciled when I recollect that America has not the means of taking the field, but that she will cheerfully stint herself to furnish them with bread.—Neither has he spoke the sentiments of the few puffed-up wretches, who sell a disputation on so fawn and cling at the foot of a tree.—They view the righteous exaction of Louis the XVIth, with horror, though his crimes would have exposed a thousand better men to the halter and the gibbet; without the pity or compassion of a single individual. No dignity of station can palliate crimes, but tends exceedingly to aggravate them—the feelings of these contemptible wretches are under the government of divine right in kings, and that they cannot do wrong; these creatures were not born in due time, they ought to have acted their part above a century ago; they break out their polished witties, that America would join England and the tyrannical junto, against France herself, and heaven. Good God! I tremble at the thought—but my nerves are soon composed when I recollect that heaven is in the alliance against them, and that she will beat them with a rod of iron, and dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.—Be ye wise, O ye kings—Be instructed ye judges of the earth, for the same almighty power which animated France to engage against a combination of tyrants, will carry her triumphant through the mighty struggle.—thus prays every good American.

May 22.

A writer in the American Daily Advertiser, sums up the following probable consequences of the United States taking part in the present war between France and Great Britain. 1. A sudden and great diminution of the exports and imports of the United States,

2. The reduction of the price of the wheat from $4 to 26 per bushel. 3. An increase of the price of all imports. Salt would probably rise from 3d to 1d. per bushel. 4. A failure of the interest on the public debt, by which means many thousand widows, orphans, and aged citizens, would be immediately reduced to poverty and misery. 5. A contradiction of all that has been said by republican writers, that wars originate in the pride, ambition, and avarice of Kings—and that republics love peace, and negotiate mistakes and insults with their neighbours. 6. Great distress among all classes of our citizens, from the loss of fathers, husbands, brothers and sons, who would perish in battle, or in military hospitals and prison ships. 7. A great increase of the public debt, and a heavy tax upon our farms to pay it. 8. A revival of the idleness, extravagance, fraud and profligacy of manners, which were produced by the late war, and which are now nearly banished from our country. 9. An increase of the influence of the executive part of the general government; whereas by the balance of principles and conduct would turn in favor of monarchy and aristocracy. 10. Peace after a seven years' war, with disgrace to our country, bankruptcy to thousands of individuals, and a concentration of all the expenitures of the war, in the hands of half a dozen contractors, quarter masters and speculators.

Lexington, July 27.

The week before last the Indians killed a man on Brashears' creek.

About the 20th of May, last a boat bound to the Illinois from Kentucky, was taken by the Indians near the mouth of the Ohio; there were six men on board, the whole of which were killed, their heads and hands cut off and their bodies ripe open; the boat was loaded principally with Merchandise.

by a gentleman who arrived in town on Tuesday last from Cummerville, we are informed that just before he left that place, a son of Gen. Robertson arrived there from the Chickasaw nation, with information, of great offers having been made by the Spaniards, to that nation, to induce them to break with the United States, which offers were treated with contempt by the chiefs of the nation, and especially the Mountain Leader.

Mr. Robertson further informs, that about 400 Creeks and Cherokees had lately passed by that nation toward the Mississippi.

A FRENCH gentleman totally unacquainted with our language, being introduced to a circle of young ladies and gentlemen in a country town, after the usual compliments had passed, he seated himself beside a beautiful young lady; and being deprived of the satisfaction of conversing with her, his countenance however expressed the sentiments of his heart, he seizing her hand, &c. requested him to be sais, which he mistaking for the French word baisz (kye me) began kissing her, to the great mirth of the whole company. The consequence however was, that the ladies came to an unanimous determination, always to say "beais" to a Frenchman.

The subscriber requests all those indebted to him, to make immediate payment; as he cannot possibly give any further indulgence. He hopes no person of gratitude so indebted will fail to comply with this notice, as they will by so doing very much disoblige themselves as well as their humble servant.

Charles Sumption,
July 26.

Mr. Bradford:

M R. Daniel Ketcham, who has lately returned from captivity among the Indians, brought a letter to me from my sister Violetto, who writes me she is married to Matthew McPaul a shoemaker in Detroit; Mr. Ketcham supposing her to have been my wife, has mentioned her marriage and his having a letter from her to me, to sundry persons in this state on his way home; now, as I am determined to endeavor to recover my wife and children, who are still prisoners, and have experienced the humanity of a number with whom I am not acquainted; as well as those with whom I am, I have taken this method of informing them of Mr. Ketcham's mistake.

JAMES LEMON.

Bourbon, July 26.

On the 9th of September, a company will meet at the Crab orchard, in order to take up every part two in Webster, and the next morning will take up

THE MARSELLES MARCH.

Sung by the Marceillois going to Battle,—by Gen. Kellerman's Army, instead of The Deum, as ordered by the National Convention—and at the different Theatres in Paris.

YE sons of France awake to glory!
Hark! hark! what myriads bid thee rise!
Your children, wives, and grandfathers hear ye!
Behold their tears and hear their cries!
Small hateful tyrants, miscief breeding,
With hireling hosts, a ruffian band.
Affright and desolate the land,
While peace and liberty lie bleeding!

To arms, to arms, ye brave,
Th' avenging sword unsheath,
March on, march on, all hearts resolv'd
On victory or death.

Now, now, the dang'rous storm is rolling,
Which treach'rous kings, confederate, raise;
The dogs at war let loose are howling.
And lo! our fields and cities blaze;
And shall we basely view the ruin,
While lawless force, with guilty pride,
Spreads desolation far and wide,
With crimes and blood his hands embuing!

To arms, ye brave, &c.

With luxury and pride surround-ed,
The wile infatiate despots dare,
Their thirst of power and gold unbounded,
To meet and vend the light and air;
Like beasts of burden would they load us,
Like gods would bid their slaves adore;
But man is man, and who is more?
Then shall they longer lash and god us?

To arms, ye brave, &c.

O Liberty! can man resign thee,
Owes having felt thy gen'rous flame?
Can dungeons, belts, and bars confine thee?
Or whips thy noble spirit tame?
Too long the world has wept, bewailing
That falsehood's dagger tyrants wield;
But freedom is our sword and shield,
And all their arts are unavailing.

To arms, ye brave, &c.
